

The lecture will present a short introduction to the Digital Humanities and to make you familiar with basic assumptions and techniques of text analysis as it is done in "text mining", an area in Computer Science. Text mining is about finding patterns in and models of text corpora. It overlaps with many other areas such as corpus linguistics, and thus is being used a lot in the Digital Humanities already.